

Who Shall Have Your Soul Tonight?

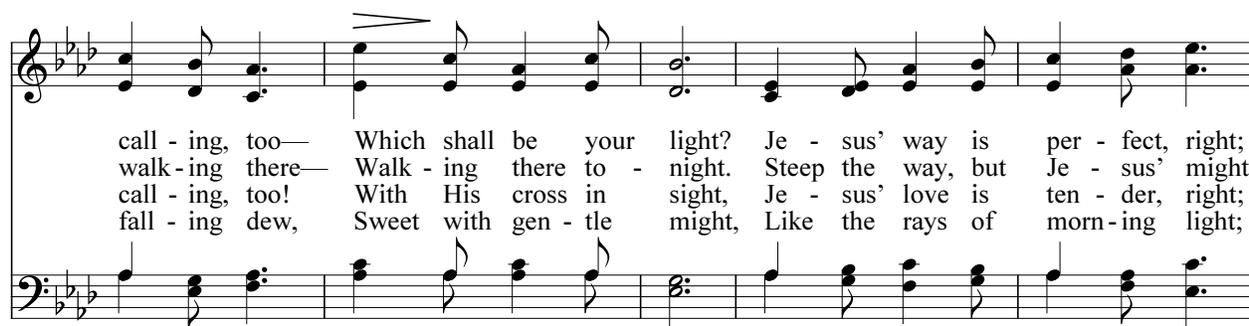

Leonard R. Jenkins, 1920

Otto Theophilus Hirschler

$\text{♩} = 100$

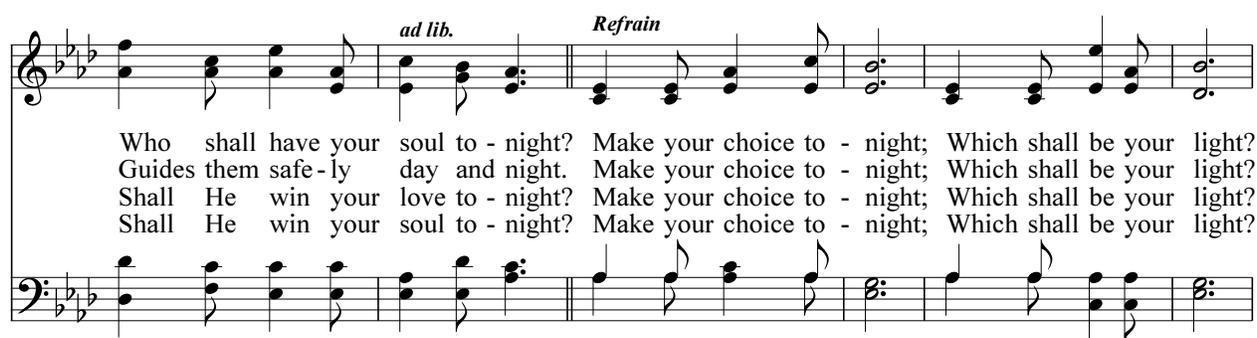

1. Je-sus' life is call - ing you, Call - ing you to - night; And the world is
2. Je-sus' cross is hard to bear Up the nar - row height, But His saints are
3. Je-sus' love is call - ing you, Call - ing you to - night; Oh, the world is
4. Je-sus' voice is call - ing you, Plead - ing now— to - night, Si - lent - ly as call - ing, too— Which shall be your light? Je - sus' way is per - fect, right; walk - ing there— Walk - ing there to - night. Steep the way, but Je - sus' might call - ing, too! With His cross in sight, Je - sus' love is ten - der, right;

fall - ing dew, Sweet with gen - tle might, Like the rays of morn - ing light;

ad lib. Refrain

Who shall have your soul to - night? Make your choice to - night; Which shall be your light?
Guides them safe - ly day and night. Make your choice to - night; Which shall be your light?
Shall He win your love to - night? Make your choice to - night; Which shall be your light?
Shall He win your soul to - night? Make your choice to - night; Which shall be your light?

ad lib.

Je - sus' way is per - fect, right; Who shall have your soul to - night?
Steep the way, but Je - sus' might Guides them safe - ly day and night.
Je - sus' love is ten - der, right; Shall He win your love to - night?
Like the rays of morn - ing light; Shall He win your soul to - night?